

Microbiology – Food Water & Environmental Laboratories

This is an opportunity for placements to experience working in a non-clinical laboratory setting.

Under supervision by qualified staff you will have the opportunity to observe and undertake some basic laboratory tasks such as processing food, water and environment samples, growing and identifying bacteria.

You will also experience first hand the many processes and procedures that are followed by our staff to ensure compliance within an NHS laboratory environment.

For those interested in a career within a Microbiology laboratory setting there are two career pathways:

- People with science qualifications
- Vocational qualification (provided in house)
