

All the relevant information and data must be considered in the assessment

Ensure data maintains validity and reliability

Any differential impact must be clearly identified

Any adverse impact must be clearly identified

The groups impacted must be clearly identified

Draw conclusions as to possible explanations for any observed differential impacts

Establish what improvements or changes in policy can be implemented to minimise negative impact on groups